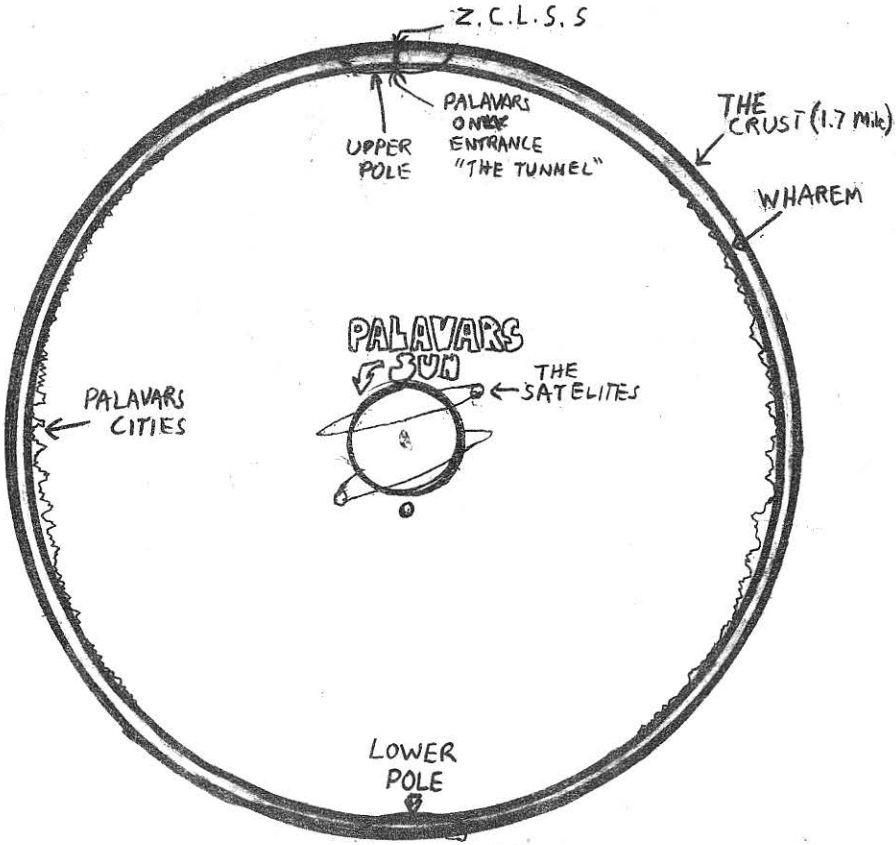
PALAVAR

Somewhere drifting at the outmost reaches of our alaxy. There is a small artificial planet space ship hich is slightly larger than our moon it is called alavar.

Seen from the outside, it appears to be a fairly arge, brilliantly shiny, golden sphere. The inside s hollow and living on the inner walls of the planet here is an advanced civilization. The planet slowly otates to create gravity for its inhabitants.



AN OPEN SIDE VIEW OF PALAVAR

Floating in the middle of this planet is a light blue dwarf sun. This sun gives off no heat just light. The sun also contains a magnetic gyro which keeps the planet spinning regularly.

There are also three small satelites that orbit the Sun. One orbits the top hemisphere of the sun going clockwise, one orbits the lower going counter-clockwise, and one rotates in a fixed position at the lower hemispheres pole.

Heat is provided by a substance called "wharem" which is sealed in the 1.7 mile thick crust, wharem gives off heat when compressed by the centrifugal force. They retain water from two small plants which grow at opposite poles. One is called "waht" and it grows at the northern pole, the other "teer" which grows at the southern pole. When they are combined they become water.

Palavars inhabitants consist of two groups, the intellects and the idiots, or the Samarits (să'măr'ĭt) and Istopids (ĭs'tŏ'pĭd). The Samarits have no physical being and are just "there". The Istopids are very low in intelligence and do all the work and maintenance.

The greatest majority of the people live at the planets equator. Because there is no heat or gravity at the poles, the inhabited areas slowly taper off as they get nearer to them.

There is a large structure at the Northern pole. It is a center for building and launching space ships called "The Zarnawitz Center for the Building and Launching of Space Ships (Z.C.L.S.S.)". The center is named after Professor Zarnawitz who designed and headed the construction of Palavar. Zarnawitz is the only one of the Samarits left in phyical form. He lives on his self-built Starship the "Armadillo". The "Armadillo" was the first and the largest ship built at the Z.C.L.S.S. Palavar was built when the Samarits got tired of their original planet. They hired Zarnawitz to build them a new one. After seventeen years and 2,163 Istopid casualties Palaver was completed. Zarnawitz wished to stay on their home planet when all the other inhabitants had left. The Samarit leader didn't see why anyone would want to stay behind, so he had their home planet destroyed. Zarnawitz never forgave the Samarits for this and vowed vengence.

In the following issues of the Scorch there will be a continuing comic strip on Palavar, featuring Professor Zarnawitz.
